

AGREEMENT

THIS AGREEMENT (the “Agreement”) is made as of _____, 2009 by and between The President and Fellows of Harvard College, a non-profit Massachusetts corporation (“Harvard”), and _____, a _____ (“Publisher”).

Publisher is the publisher of the journals listed on Publisher’s website at _____ (the “Journals”).

The Faculty of Arts and Sciences at Harvard, the Harvard Law School, and the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard each have adopted policies, copies of which are set forth at <http://osc.hul.harvard.edu>, under which the authors of covered articles grant Harvard a non-exclusive license to make the articles available and to exercise all rights under copyright relating to the articles, and to authorize others to do the same, provided that the articles are not sold for a profit. The licenses granted to Harvard under those policies, and any substantially similar license granted to Harvard under any similar policy that may be adopted by other Harvard Faculties, Schools or units in the future, are referred to herein collectively as the “OAP License,” and each such current or future policy is referred to herein as an “Open Access Policy.” Any article that is covered by an Open Access Policy and therefore subject to the OAP License, and that is accepted for publication in one of Publisher’s Journals, together with any supplementary materials, is referred to herein as an “Article.” The author or authors of an Article are referred to herein collectively as the “Author.” The agreement between Publisher (or an Other Entity, as defined in Section 5) and the Author concerning the publication of an Article is referred to herein as a “Publication Agreement.”

Harvard is willing to restrict its rights under the OAP License in the Articles, and Publisher is willing to accept Articles subject to the OAP License as thus restricted, and the parties wish this to be effective without the need for addenda to individual Publication Agreements. The parties also wish to make various related agreements.

NOW, THEREFORE, Publisher and Harvard agree as follows:

1. Restrictions on the OAP License. Subject to Section 3, Harvard agrees to restrict its rights under the OAP License for each Article as follows:

a. Harvard may use the Author’s final version of the Article (including all modifications from the peer review process), but will not use a facsimile of the published version unless Publisher permits use of that version.

b. When Harvard displays or distributes the Article, Harvard will not charge for it and will not sell advertising on the same page without permission of Publisher. Even charges that merely recoup reproduction or other costs, and involve no profit, will be forbidden.

c. When Harvard makes the Article available in its on-line repository, Harvard will use reasonable efforts both to cite to Publisher’s definitive version of the Article if it has been published, and to provide a link to Publisher’s version if it is available on-line.

d. Harvard will authorize others to exercise rights under the OAP License relating to the Article only subject to all of the foregoing restrictions.

The restrictions set forth above apply only to Harvard's rights under the OAP License, and will not apply to any other rights that Harvard or the Author of an Article may have (including, without limitation, rights reserved or granted under any Publication Agreement). Further, nothing in this Section 1 shall restrict or limit Harvard from making or authorizing any use of an Article that, in the absence of the OAP License, would not give rise to liability for copyright infringement (including, without limitation, any "fair use").

2. Certain Agreements of Publisher. Subject to Section 3, but notwithstanding anything in any Publication Agreement to the contrary:

a. Publisher acknowledges and agrees that the Articles, and Publisher's rights therein, are and will be subject to the OAP License, as restricted per Section 1.

b. Without the need for any further action, all of the terms and conditions of each Publication Agreement will be subject to and qualified by the OAP License, as restricted per Section 1. Without the need for any further action, all of the terms and conditions of each Publication Agreement also will, where applicable, be subject to and qualified by non-exclusive rights previously granted (or required to be granted) to any funding entity that supported the research reflected in the Article as part of an agreement between Author or Author's employing institution and such funding entity.

c. Publisher agrees that neither the existence nor exercise of the OAP License, as restricted per Section 1, or any other rights described in Section 2(b), will be deemed to violate any representation or warranty or to breach any Publication Agreement. Publisher agrees not to bring any claim asserting such a violation or breach.

d. Publisher will not require that the author obtain a waiver of the Open Access Policy with respect to a given article as a condition of Publisher's accepting or publishing the article, and will not take into account the fact that an article is subject to the OAP License in deciding whether to accept it for publication.

3. Articles Covered; Termination. Either Publisher or Harvard may terminate the arrangement under this Agreement on a prospective basis at any time in its sole discretion by giving the other party written notice of termination. Any such termination will be effective sixty (60) days after such notice (the "Termination Date"). As used herein, the "Initial Date" means, for any Article, the date on which the OAP Policy that applies to that Article was adopted, as specified at <http://osc.hul.harvard.edu/OpenAccess/policytexts.php>. This Agreement will be effective with respect to all Articles submitted to Publisher after the Initial Date and before the Termination Date. Notwithstanding any termination, this Agreement will continue in effect after the Termination Date for all Articles submitted to Publisher between the Initial Date and the Termination Date, regardless when they were accepted for publication or published. Following termination, Publisher and Harvard will cooperate to identify which Articles subsequently published by Publisher were submitted before the Termination Date. This Agreement will have no effect with respect to Articles submitted to Publisher before the Initial Date or after the Termination Date. Subject to the foregoing, if after the date of this Agreement any Journal is added to the list of Publisher's Journals on the website cited in the second paragraph of this Agreement, then this Agreement will apply to Articles thereafter accepted for publication in that Journal; and if after the date of this Agreement any Journal is removed from the list of Publisher's Journals on that website, then this Agreement will not apply to Articles thereafter accepted for publication in that journal, but will continue to apply to Articles previously accepted for publication in that Journal. Publisher will promptly notify Harvard of any changes in that list.

4. Notices. Any notice permitted or required by this Agreement will be deemed given if sent by facsimile or by certified mail, postage prepaid, return receipt requested, addressed to the other party at the address set forth below. Delivery will be deemed effective upon transmission by facsimile (with receipt acknowledgement) or three (3) days after deposit with postal authorities. Unless otherwise specified by Publisher, notices directed to Publisher shall be sent to _____ . Unless otherwise specified by Harvard, notices directed to Harvard shall be sent to Attn: Director, Harvard University Library, Wadsworth House, 1341 Massachusetts Ave., Cambridge, MA 02138, or via facsimile to Harvard University Library, Attn: Director, 617-495-0370, with a copy to Harvard University, Attn: General Counsel, Massachusetts Hall, Harvard University, Cambridge, MA 02138, or via facsimile to Harvard University, Attn: General Counsel, 617-496-6109.

5. Authors to Benefit; Other Entities. The provisions of Section 2 of this Agreement are intended for the benefit not only of Harvard but also of all Authors of Articles. Publisher acknowledges that Authors will rely on this Agreement in entering into Publication Agreements without modifications to take account of the OAP License. If, for any of the Journals, Publisher does not enter into publication agreements directly with authors, or does not itself hold the copyrights that are transferred by authors, and instead some other entity (each an "Other Entity") enters into those agreements or holds those copyrights, then Publisher will promptly cause each Other Entity to agree to all of the terms of this Agreement that are applicable to Publisher. Publisher will be responsible for each Other Entity's compliance with those terms, and each Other Entity's agreement will be for the benefit of Harvard and Authors.

6. General. This Agreement shall be governed by Massachusetts law without giving effect to applicable conflict of laws provisions. This Agreement constitutes the entire understanding and agreement with respect to its subject matter, and supersedes any and all prior or contemporaneous representations, understandings and agreements whether oral or written between the parties relating to the subject matter of this Agreement. No modification or amendment of this Agreement will be effective unless in writing signed by the party to be charged. This Agreement may be executed by exchange of signature pages by facsimile or email, and in any number of counterparts, each of which shall be an original as against any party whose signature appears thereon and all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have signed this Agreement as of the date first set forth above.
